160 years

Acknowledgement of Country

Good Shepherd Australia New Zealand acknowledge that First Nations Peoples, tangata whenua, as the traditional custodians of the lands on which we live and work.

We also acknowledge that Good Shepherd has not always been in right relationship with these traditional custodians, their culture, or their lands.

In the case of Aotearoa, we acknowledge Māori as tangata whenua, and we acknowledge and commit to Te Tiriti O Waitangi.

In the case of Australia, we acknowledge that the lands were never ceded, and that First Nations Peoples seek Treaty, Truth and Voice through the Uluru Statement from the Heart, which we fully support.

We pay our deep respects to Elders past and present and commit to seeking ongoing opportunities for friendship and partnership with Aboriginal, Torres Strait Islander and Māori custodians of all lands and language groups.

160 Years Young

In 2023, we acknowledge 160 years of supporting women, girls and families in Australia.

The audacity and zeal of Saint Mary Euphrasia Pelletier still drives us today as we continue to disrupt, striving for equity, dignity and social justice.

MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIR

Anne Astin

AM PSM PhD

During 2022-23, the impacts of post-pandemic disruption were felt by people all over the world. None more so than the vulnerable, often voiceless, women, families and children that the Good Shepherd international movement works to represent and care for. Demand for services, such as ours, has never been higher, more immediate, or more complex.

During the year, across all our global chapters, we saw multiple and interlinked crises that impacted our clients in deeply profound and personal ways.

As a result, Good Shepherd Australia New Zealand (GSANZ) was inspired to chart a new foundational way forward by doubling down on our efforts to re-imagine and revitalise our offering.

Our 160-year anniversary, celebrated across our region, has been significant. It provides us with the opportunity to reflect on our legacy, build confidence and commit to a foundational change, based on the longevity of our 400-year-old worldwide Mission.

The importance of continuing our narrative is vital to our future but, more importantly, to the ways we care for many thousands of people every year. While we still have congregational members with us, continuing to learn where they've come from makes us realise how fortunate we are as trusted custodians to honour their legacy into the future.

At a governance level, GSANZ now faces an exciting opportunity to connect more deeply with our global congregation. We are, very proudly, part of an international community.

Strengthening our relationships with our New Zealand (Aotearoa) colleagues and partners in Mission will remain important. We are mobilising and adapting to consolidate authentic, synergistic, and mutually supportive relationships across the Tasman. Capitalising on commonalities and shared philosophies we see in Australia and New Zealand (Aotearoa) will lead us to better governance of both as 'one', while also respecting our individual uniqueness.

The strengthened governance arrangements will ensure we attract Directors to our respective Boards (GSANZ and GSNZ) who have the skills and experience to take us forward and deliver our upcoming Strategic Plan collectively.

And, operationally, in Australia, a whole-of-organisation re-positioning has led to deeper integration of services that offer our clients a more inclusive, inviting and streamlined experience. In New Zealand (Aotearoa), opportunities for increasing services to respond to significant client needs are also driving vitality and innovation.

Externally, judicious investment and reinvestment in relationships will lead to bolder, strengthened co-design of systemic policies and programs that change lives.

Across the year under review, the need for systemic change has never been more pronounced. As an example, in 2022-23, our work to develop the Good Shepherd Institute with Monash University continued to create an influential, world-class, multidisciplinary centre that will be launched in 2023-24.

Good Shepherd is now moving, steadily and determinedly, into the role of leading development of an ecosystem framework. Putting financial health and wellbeing firmly on the agenda of governments, businesses and the community sector is our commitment.

These interdependencies will ensure that we all have responsibility, accountability, and reporting duties to ensure we are delivering to the people in our care.

Our goal is to support truth-telling in real and earnest ways that is backed by 'big ideas.' And that we always respond to the 'at need' and 'in place' requirements of our clients in integrated and thoughtful ways.

The future for Good Shepherd is a steadfast and unrelenting focus on our clients. How we do this is through judicious relationships with investors, policymakers, partners, and our Sisters, to respond and innovate in a contemporary, fast-changing, and relevant way.

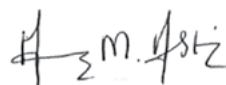

I extend my gratitude and thanks to our GSANZ and GSNZ current and recently retired Board Directors. I'd like to particularly acknowledge and extend my thanks to Michael Raper for his considerable contribution to the GSANZ Board during his tenure and for navigating the governance changes that have occurred.

My deepest appreciation goes to our network CEO, Stella Avramopoulos, whose zeal, commitment, tenacity, and passion are testament to the transformational leadership she is driving.

I also proudly acknowledge our executive, leadership and staff teams who continue to model compassion and professionalism in living our Good Shepherd mission.

And to our partners who have been generous, supportive, and respectful. With genuine indebtedness, I thank them.

It is an honour and privilege to serve you all.

MESSAGE FROM THE CEO

Stella
Avramopoulos

Against the backdrop of our significant 400-year global legacy, in 2022-23 Good Shepherd Australia New Zealand proudly acknowledged our 160th anniversary of supporting women, girls and families in Australia. We saw demand for our services soar during the reporting period as the post-pandemic socioeconomic crisis hit hard for those people experiencing vulnerability.

As the world faced new environmental disasters, economic upheaval, housing crises and political unrest, Good Shepherd Sisters and delegates from 72 countries came together to develop a new, transformative way forward.

I was honoured to be invited to participate in the Good Shepherd International Foundation's (GSIF) strategic planning forum in Rome, to determine its next five-year strategy.

This powerful and dynamic consultation process set the scene for the development of our own GSA NZ 2023-27 Strategic Plan.

Our new strategy aligns us with GSIF and defines the directional strategy for our Australian and New Zealand operations for the next five years. Our extensive consultation process saw more than 200 of our tireless frontline staff and leaders, our Australian and New Zealand Boards, Provincial Leadership Team, Stewardship Council and GSIF, and some 60 external cross-sector stakeholders – including key partners in government, community, philanthropic and corporate sectors – help us design and determine our direction.

The new Good Shepherd Australia New Zealand strategy will roll out in 2023-24 and position our organisation across the prevention through to recovery service spectrum, to better serve women, girls and families.

As well as our contribution to strategic issues, across the year our operational progress across Australia and New Zealand continued unabated.

Our previous 2019-22 Strategic Plan was our guiding light through the challenges of the pandemic. Our ongoing Lighthouse Program achieved impressive results in our digital uplift, improving internal efficiencies and simplifying client contact across our programs and services. Our Good Shepherd Way, that helps us bring our values to life, became more embedded in our services delivery.

Our advocacy and systems change work spread the Good Shepherd message in meaningful and influential ways. We are not only a trusted service provider to government, our partners and the for-purpose sector, we are also considered to be a reliable, 'boots on the ground' advisor.

Our November report, 'Safety net for sale: The role of Buy Now Pay Later in exploiting financial vulnerability' and our shared advocacy with other sector partners, helped pave the way for the development of a new regulatory regime for BNPL products.

Our wholehearted support of the Voice to Parliament and the implementation of the Uluru Statement from the Heart is proving powerful. Our support of the 2022-2032 National Plan to End Violence against Women and Children has been acknowledged as pivotal, commending a sector-wide focus on addressing financial abuse and housing instability in ending family violence.

For a few years now, our research and on-the-ground insights identified that the wave of social and economic disparity would become a tsunami. Amidst the turmoil faced by individuals, families and communities caused by massive recent societal shifts, Good Shepherd has planned carefully and thoughtfully for the future. Our steadfast focus remains on keeping women, children and families safe, well, strong and connected, whilst also working to respond to emerging vulnerability and cost of living pressures.

Our natural curiosity, our focus on disruption and our commitment to holistic, person-centred service delivery has prepared us well for the future. We will continue to collaborate globally and deliver locally, as we strive for equity, dignity and social justice.

My heartfelt appreciation goes to our Board for their strategic oversight, esteem of governance and their unequivocal support of our day-to-day operations.

Our partners have staunchly collaborated with us to support our clients in a range of meaningful ways that respect their human rights and amplifies their voices.

And our staff have been nothing short of outstanding, representing the human face of both compassion and professionalism to our clients every day.

To our clients, your lived experience is the driver, motivation and inspiration for our mission – we feel honoured to be working with you, honouring your stories and wisdom.

We are delighted to present our 2022-23 Year in Review to you.

ABOUT GOOD
AUSTRALIA NEW ZEALAND

“While the essential content of our Mission is unchanging, the outward form should be dynamic and evolving.”

Saint Mary Euphrasia Pelletier

Who we are

The Sisters of Good Shepherd was established in France over 400 years ago to respond to the significant issues impacting women, girls and families. Saint Mary Euphrasia carried forward the Mission, expanding internationally. The audacity and zeal that brought us to Australia in 1863, and New Zealand in 1866, still drives us today.

What we do

We provide programs and services that support women, girls, and families to be strong, safe, well, and connected.

How we do it

Clients are at the centre of what we do. We continue to respond to their emerging needs to provide innovative and locally tailored responses. We know one sector cannot disrupt hardship in the community, so we are building cross-sector services and coalitions to have whole system impact. Our services are complemented by research, advocacy, and policy development to address the underlying structural causes of injustice and inequality.

We see our Vision and Values like a gold thread

We see our Vision like a gold thread woven into the fabric of every aspect of our work.

Our way of responding might change, but our Vision for all women, girls and families to be safe, well, strong and connected has never wavered.

We are guided by our Values of Reconciliation, Justice, Audacity, Zeal and seeing the Value of Each Person.

Our Values set the tone for how we walk alongside our clients and engage with our partners and our people.

Vision

We aspire for all women, girls, and families to be safe, well, strong and connected.

Mission

To tackle the significant issues impacting women, girls, and families.

Purpose

To enable fullness of life for women, girls and families experiencing hardship.

Values

Seeing the Value of Each Person and respecting everyone's rights.

Reconciliation, by supporting people to find peace, wellbeing, and wholeness within themselves, with each other and in their environment.

Justice, by challenging systems and behaviours that disadvantage people and advocating for positive change.

Audacity, having the courage to speak out, follow new paths and take action for the Mission.

Zeal, we are wholehearted in our purpose.

OUR NETWORK

Making an impact globally

Good Shepherd is the largest, longest-running organisation supporting women and girls in the world.

Good Shepherd Australia New Zealand is a member of the global Good Shepherd network, which has increased to more than 73 countries since 1835.

The global network focuses on issues such as poverty, human trafficking and violence towards women and children.

We are also one of 19 member countries of the Good Shepherd Asia Pacific region. We work together to advance equity and social justice and support our communities to thrive.

Good Shepherd International Justice Peace Office has special consultative status with the United Nations Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) for our work with and for women and girls.

Good Shepherd International Foundation

Improving the lives of girls, women and children

The Good Shepherd International Foundation (GSIF) is a not-for-profit organisation committed to supporting the programs of the Good Shepherd sisters for women, girls and children living in vulnerable conditions in the most impoverished areas of the world.

We protect and promote the rights of people affected by poverty, human trafficking, migration, gender-based violence and other violations of human rights in more than 30 countries of Africa, Middle East, Latin America and Asia Pacific.

Strengthening relationships across the globe

In October 2022, CEO, Stella Avramopoulos and Director of Mission, Gendrie Klein-Breteler AM joined international colleagues in Rome to contribute to Good Shepherd International Foundation (GSIF).

In February 2022, Asia Pacific Regional Manager, Onalie De Silva Ariyabandhu from GSIF visited Australia to learn about our client service delivery model.

These networking opportunities support us to share knowledge and expand culturally safe and responsive programs across the global network.

1835 Order of Sisters of Good Shepherd founded in France by Saint Mary Euphrasia.

Institutionalisation care and work

In the absence of a social security system in Australia during the 19th century, charitable institutions provide relief to those who need support.

1851 Gold rushes in New South Wales and Victoria begin.

1890s Depression.

1850-1890

1863 Sister Mary Euphrasia carries forward the Good Shepherd Mission by sending four sisters to Australia in response to the growing number of women in distressed circumstances in the Melbourne area.

"It is up to you to make it possible that those exhausted and lost in the ways of the world should find strength in the shade of this healing tree."

Sister Mary Euphrasia

1863 Abbotsford Convent opens and begins admitting women and girls experiencing disadvantage.

1864 Magdalen laundry at Abbotsford is opened.

1879 St Euphrasia's School, Abbotsford opens for children in the surrounding districts.

1883 St Anthony's Oakleigh, Victoria opens for training and education for girls who were deemed by the Children's Court to be in need of care.

1886 Good Shepherd Sisters arrive in New Zealand and open a large residential facility for women and children suffering disadvantage at Mt Magdala Convent in Christchurch.

Places of refuge, relief and charity

War, a pandemic and the Great Depression increase the number of Australians requiring aid. To meet the growing need, Good Shepherd expands its reformatory schools and institutions across NSW, Tasmania, Queensland, and New Zealand.

1902 Commonwealth Franchise Act gives mostly non-Indigenous women the vote in federal elections.

1912 Australian Government introduces a maternity allowance.

1914-1918 World War I.

1919 Influenza pandemic reaches Australia.

1938 Aboriginal Day of Mourning.

1939 Start of World War II.

1891-1940

1892 Rosary Place, Marion Hall, Albert Park opens to alleviate overcrowding at the Abbotsford Convent. Closes 1973.

1893 Mt St Canice in Tasmania established to provide residential care and schooling for women and girls experiencing disadvantage.

1904 Home of the Good Shepherd in Leederville, Western Australia opens to provide residential care for teenage girls and women.

1905 St Aidan's Orphanage, Bendigo is established to cater for people experiencing homelessness. This was the only Good Shepherd facility in Australia to care for boys.

1913 Ashfield, NSW opens residential care, reformatory school and Magdalen laundry. It is the first Good Shepherd facility in NSW.

1931 Mt Maria, Brisbane/Good Shepherd Home for Girls is established for the reformation of girls and the care of poor and neglected children.

1940 Maryville Aged Care Boronia, Victoria established to provide a guesthouse for elderly women and former residents of Rosary Place in Albert Park.

Greater community integration of services

From the mid-20th century, the philosophy of protecting 'vulnerable persons' from harm and exploitation within an institution is beginning to shift.

1943 First women in Australian Parliament.

1945 End of World War II.

1945 National introduction of sickness and unemployment benefits.

1961 Introduction of the oral contraceptive pill.

1962-1972 Vietnam War.

1966 Wave Hill Walk Off and end of White Australia Policy. Marriage Bar abolished.

1941-1971

1942 "The Pines," a home for teenage girls opens in Adelaide including a reformatory school and Magdalen laundry.

1948 Toongabbie, a holiday home and farm school for girls opens in Western Sydney, NSW.

1956 St Clare's School in Perth, Western Australia is established to provide support and empowerment to girls (Yr 8 -12) who find mainstream school environments difficult.

1967 Good Shepherd Sisters establish their prison program commencing at HM Prison Pentridge in Victoria. Good Shepherd staff continue to deliver prison programs and visitations today.

1968 Good Shepherd Neville Training Centre established, a security centre for 'delinquent' girls.

Targeted welfare assistance and de-institutionalisation

The 1970s saw the closure of most of Australia's residential institutions. Children's homes, homes for people with mental illness and people with disability were closed. It was also an era of great structural reform including refreshed education, health systems and social welfare.

1971 Women are granted loans without requiring a male guarantor.

1972 the right to Equal Pay for Women established.

1973 Supporting Mother's Benefit introduced.

1975 Family Law Act passed and a 'no-fault' divorce clause introduced.

1984 Introduction of Medicare.

1992 High Court decision in Mabo case recognises native title.

2000 Care Leavers Australasia Network formed.

1972-2000

1972 Good Shepherd Aged Services founded.

1975 Abbotsford Convent Sold.

1976 Good Shepherd establishes Youth and Family Services.

1980s St Albans, Hastings and St Kilda communities established offering family counselling, supported accommodation, No Interest Loans and financial counselling, teenage foster care, emergency housing and refuges for victims of family violence.

1981 The Good Shepherd Sisters provide funds to establish No Interest Loans.

1982 Rosemount Day Centre established to provide youth services.

1990s Good Shepherd opens its first family violence refuge on the Mornington Peninsula in Victoria. This was the first refuge of this type following the era of Good Shepherd hostels.

1993 Trading Circle established.

1990s Good Shepherd Social Justice Network is formed.

"When any person is oppressed, excluded, or deprived in any way, we are all impoverished. Where any part of creation is abused or destroyed, our lives are diminished. We are therefore prepared to challenge persons, institutions or structures that negate fullness of life and human dignity."

Mission statement expressed by the Provincial Chapter 1990

THE IMPACT WE SEEK

Priority areas

1. Economic participation and wellbeing

Women, girls and families are enabled to be economically strong.

2. Safety

Women, girls and families live free of violence.

3. Housing options

Women have safe and secure housing in supported communities.

4. Resilience

Women, girls and families are equipped to overcome the challenges they face.

5. System change

Positive change in laws, policies, financial instruments, social norms, and behaviours.

Our strategic priorities

Priority 1 Service excellence

We will focus on services that ensure women, girls and families avoid their disadvantage becoming entrenched.

Priority 2 Coalitions for impact

We will embrace coalitions to help women, girls and families in need of support to navigate the available services and systems.

Priority 3 Whole system thinking and action

We will make an enduring impact by creating system change that provides security and opportunity.

OUR IMPACT

1. ECONOMIC PARTICIPATION AND WELLBEING

Women, girls, and families are enabled to be economically strong.

Service excellence

NO INTEREST LOANS

Supporting people experiencing financial vulnerability with access to safe and affordable credit.

For 42 years, we have been delivering No Interest Loans (NILs) to support eligible people with access to safe and affordable credit to purchase essential goods and services.

The NILs program was established in 1981 after the Good Shepherd Sisters observed a need to lend to people experiencing financial vulnerability.

Despite advice from their trusted advisors that the program was too 'risky,' the Sisters led with audacity and zeal and asked the question: "But what if it does work?"

How one audacious question and one amazing partnership have reshaped how people experiencing financial vulnerability are supported.

More than just a loan

Sadly, Pensioners – especially the one in four older Australians living in poverty – are often first to be impacted by the rise in cost-of-living pressures. Despite having carefully planned budgets, when unexpected expenses arise, it can be hard to make ends meet.

Edi Spina found herself in that position after her washing machine unexpectedly broke down. Thankfully, she reached out to our NILs community partner at her local Salvation Army, who suggested she apply for a No Interest Loan.

“I rang them on Monday and, by Wednesday afternoon, I received my washing machine. That’s how quick it was,” Edi recalls.

Since paying off her new washing machine, Edi has since used NILs to help her pay for a new pair of prescription glasses and a fridge.

Edi said that the NILs application process was dignified and didn’t make her feel like a “science-experiment” because she’s a low-income earner.

“I didn’t feel judged, and they wanted to be sure I could repay it comfortably.”

To Edi, NILs was so much more than a loan. It improved her confidence to feel she could get what she needed without having to sacrifice quality.

“I got a beautiful new fridge and washing machine which gave me this automatic feeling like I was like everyone else – like a normal person.”

Eunice Bartlett

Proud First Nations woman, Eunice Bartlett desperately needed a loan to have her car repaired. However, the overwhelming paperwork and her lack of trust in 'white services,' left her feeling apprehensive about reaching out.

"I didn't want to feel stigmatised. For an Aboriginal person, unfortunately sometimes you can expect a negative experience," Eunice explains.

Eunice was referred to Good Money in Salisbury by NAB and she loved the process and the service so much she said she plans to come out of retirement to help connect her community to NILs.

"Amie from Good Money is just so helpful! I felt overwhelmed with the paperwork, but she made the process so easy. I kept asking Amie, 'Is this alright – how do you think I'll go?' She made me feel clear on the process. It was just lovely!"

When asked if Eunice would recommend NILs to others, she said. "I already have told people about NILs – I told my sister and have already talked to five or six of my relatives. NILs has made a big difference in my life, and I am keen to connect my community to the program.

"I feel so happy!"

Thank you to our NILS community partners and volunteers

MercyCare NILs Volunteer, Ian Bardwell

After retiring from a 45-year career in banking, Ian Bardwell joined MercyCare NILs in Western Australia as a volunteer.

For ten years he has used his skills to support people experiencing vulnerability, developing his own philosophy: 'Never judge people and always show compassion.'

"The most challenging thing about my role is wanting to do more to help people, but not being able to," Ian said.

He is passionate about helping others, especially those from the refugee and migrant community.

"In my experience as a NILs volunteer, I have found that especially refugee people are so thankful to be in a new country and to be safe from political and social insecurity and danger, that they are motivated and want to contribute to their new country.

"They want to work, but to do this they need to have a driver's licence, a stable home with essentials. They don't want to have to rely on the government, but they are often excluded from a traditional bank loan.

"NILs has allowed them to get on this track and give them that start that they struggle to get."

The history of NILs

But what if it does work?

1981 – Establishing: The Good Shepherd Sisters ask, "But what if it does work?" and NILs is born. Throughout the 1980s the Good Shepherd Sisters launch NILs in Victoria via the youth and family services division and gain momentum working with the Vic State Bank and other capital funding sources.

1993 – Formalising: The Victorian NILs network is established with philanthropic funding and toolkits established to help our community providers set up NILs.

1995–1999 – Expanding: Funded by the Good Shepherd Sisters and the Commonwealth, the NILs network expands into South Australia, New South Wales, Queensland and Western Australia and the NILs National Community Network is established.

2003 – Partnering: Good Shepherd partners with the National Australia Bank to deliver No Interest Loans (NILs) to support more people.

“Getting a No Interest Loan enabled me to buy an electric bike. Being a disabled Pensioner, it’s hard for me to get around, so NILs gave me my freedom back.”

NILs client, Denice Caldwell

2005 – Recognition:

The United Nations Year of Microfinance recognises NILs as part of a global social justice movement.

2008 – Growth:

Recovery response to the global financial crisis includes additional funding from state and national governments.

2012 – Good Money stores open in Victoria, offering a new way of delivering community finance options to those who need them the most.

2016–2017 – Good Money Stores open in Queensland and South Australia.

2021 – Funding and capital partners; Department of Social Services and NAB support a pilot program to fund NILs for Vehicles.

2022 – NILs product are expanded to a $2000 loan amount for an extended range of loan purposes. Income eligibility limits are increased in response to the cost-of-living crisis. These changes open up NILs to an eligible audience of 3.4 million households nationally. Good Shepherd records its biggest year in NILs loans issued.

Today:

From humble beginnings, NILs is now a national program delivered by Good Shepherd and 170 Community Service Providers across 600+ locations nationally.

Celebrating 20 years of partnership

In 2003, Good Shepherd Microfinance partnered with National Australia Bank (NAB) to provide a robust base of capital funding for the No Interest Loans program. Since then, together, we've delivered over 360,000 loans, impacting millions of lives across Australia. No Interest Loans (NILs) are now offered by 170 local community organisations in over 600 locations nationally.

We thank NAB for their ongoing partnership. Our great appreciation also goes out to state and federal governments, our NILs community network partners and NILs volunteers.

NILs in New Zealand

In the 1990s, the Good Shepherd Sisters in New Zealand provided small, interest free loans to families from refugee backgrounds to help with family reunification costs. In 2014, Good Shepherd NZ expanded the reach of its microfinance services in partnership with the Bank of New Zealand and the Ministry of Social Development. They now partner with a range of other community partners to deliver NILs and Low interest StepUP loans across the country. In 2022, all microfinance loans delivered by Good Shepherd NZ and its partners became fee and interest free under the Good Loans brand.

Protecting women from abusive and coercive Buy Now Pay Later debt

On 22 May 2023, the Federal Government announced its commitment to regulate Buy Now Pay Later (BNPL) products, to better protect women against abusive and coercive debt.

After months of advocacy, we were able to highlight the links between economic insecurity, BNPL products and family violence, which we see amongst our clients.

We look forward to working with the government to develop the appropriate regulatory safeguards, to ensure we are protecting women.

We are also indebted to our network of advocates including Financial Counselling Australia, CHOICE, Consumer Action Law Centre and the Redfern Legal Centre.

FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE HUB

Supporting victim-survivors to recover and heal from family violence and financial abuse

The Financial Independence Hub (FIH) is a national, trauma-informed service that supports victim-survivors of family violence to manage their finances. By working one-on-one with a dedicated hub coordinator,

FIH assists participants to have:

- Judgement-free conversations about money
- Help to create a savings plan
- Support to manage finances, bills, debts, and credit scores
- Access to No Interest Loans
- Connection to tailored support services.

FIH supports people of all gender identities and is open anyone residing in Australia (they don't have to be a permanent resident or have a visa).

Women's economic inequity and insecurity are at the heart of gendered violence. Put simply, a lack of money forces women to stay with abusive men.

At least 1 in 4 women* who want to leave a violent partner are unable to because they don't have enough money.

* Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS). 2017. Personal Safety Survey, Australia, 2016 (ABS cat. no. 4906.0). Canberra, ACT: ABS.

Heather* came to FIH after coming out of an abusive relationship that continued to have an impact on her and her two children, years after it ended.

Her ex had accumulated debt in her name and she was left with an unattractive credit score, no income, family home or career.

With the help of FIH, a tonne of willpower and love and strength, Heather was able to regain financial independence and to take control of her life.

She has since regained a perfect credit score, has created two start-up companies, gained full-time employment and has bought a forever home for her and her children.

"It's not only the expertise of all individuals involved with my story that has been life-changing financially. It is their manner, lived experience and trauma-informed approach that has made a once unmanageable situation peaceful and inspiring throughout," Heather said.

"There is a silver lining to trauma. Victims find immense strength in the community who just get it. Through their professionalism, empathy, validation, calmness, humour and urgency, Good Shepherd has alleviated my pain and given me the strength to rebuild."

3 Whole system thinking and action

Audacious system change is needed to address financial abuse

An effective national approach to addressing financial abuse requires the coordinated efforts of all levels of government and regulatory bodies.

“(Financial abuse) is like the hidden shackles that, even though you leave them, you’re still tied to them. You’re handcuffed to them. And you want to break free, but they just won’t let you.”

FIH Participant (2022)

Our campaign for change in this space has been focused and unwavering, consistently advocating to government for:

Access to sufficient basic income and adequate social security payments

Safe and affordable housing

Affordable or free childcare

Reliable child support payments

Additional financial resources to facilitate leaving abusive relationships safely.

Good Shepherd’s involvement in policy, legislative and regulatory reform in financial abuse has included:

- August 2022 – Submission to Australian Energy Market Commission (AEMC) Draft Determination Protecting Customers Affected by Family Violence
- November 2022 – Safety net for sale: The role of Buy Now Pay Later in exploiting financial vulnerability

FINANCIAL INCLUSION ACTION PLAN

Working together to enhance financial wellbeing

Geelong place-based FIAP

Eighteen leading organisations from a range of sectors across Geelong committed to take action to enhance the financial resilience and wellbeing of their community.

Stakeholders from local businesses, not-for-profits and government agencies pledged to use their collective influence through the creation of a shared Financial Inclusion Action Plan (FIAP), which was published in March 2023.

This is the second phase of FIAP, which was initially launched in 2020 with 10 pioneering organisations in Geelong.

The Foundation FIAP demonstrated the power of some of Geelong's prominent leaders coming together to better support their communities through financial vulnerability.

Northern Adelaide place-based FIAP

Following the success of the Geelong Foundation FIAP in 2020, the Department of Human Services (DHS) of SA extended an opportunity for FIAP to enhance financial wellbeing in Northern Adelaide.

Launched in April 2022, the Northern Adelaide FIAP reflects the collective commitment of 11 organisations to 'Build a Financially Resilient Community Where People Thrive.'

2 Coalitions for impact

Taking a place-based approach

Place-based FIAPs bring together organisations in a specific location to address issues of financial wellbeing in their local communities.

The place-based FIAP program works on the premise that organisations on the ground are best placed to understand local challenges. They can identify the risks and triggers of financial stress and can take practical actions to address these in collaboration with others.

Geelong, Victoria

The Geelong Region Build FIAP members will continue to implement and deliver the agreed actions over the coming two years. They will also build on opportunities for collaboration amongst existing, new, and future Geelong region FIAP members.

The monitoring and evaluation of each action will be important to measure the outcomes and impact of this FIAP. It will allow organisations to demonstrate change, learn what works and what doesn't, and capture the data to know the difference their actions are making. At the conclusion of the two-year period, a formal verification report will be developed and published.

Northern Adelaide, South Australia

On 29 June 2023, the Impact Report for Northern Adelaide FIAP was published and communicated to FIAP members which marks the completion of the Foundation FIAP. We are open to exploring co-funding opportunities to continue this work and move the Northern Adelaide community to the next stage of FIAP.

QUEENSLAND FINANCIAL RESILIENCE PROGRAM

Building a better financial future

The Queensland Financial Resilience Program provides eligible Queenslanders with a free, non-judgemental and confidential service to help them become more financially secure and better manage their money.

This innovative pilot program supports our clients with early intervention to crisis support and recovery, including:

- Financial conversations
- Financial counselling
- Connection to social workers.

Clients also have the option to undertake sessions in a way that works for them, including face-to-face, group work or virtually.

2 Coalitions for impact

Good Shepherd entered a contract with the Queensland Government to deliver the Queensland Financial Resilience Program. The Queensland Government determined 27 priority areas across the state.

In conjunction with Neighbourhood and Community Centre's QLD (NCQ), we engaged local centres in these priority areas to maximise their relationships, knowledge and understanding of their communities.

When someone comes into the program, we help them navigate our financial programs within Good Shepherd to ensure continuity of services and the best possible client experience.

FAMILY VIOLENCE SERVICES, VICTORIA

Delivering trauma-informed services with dignity.

Family violence is a national crisis

On average, a woman is killed by an intimate partner every 10 days in Australia¹.

One in three women has experienced physical violence since the age of 15, and one in five has experienced sexual violence².

One in five Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander women aged 15 and over has experienced physical violence in a 12-month period³.

We need an audacious response across prevention through to recovery and healing to ensure women and children's long-term safety and economic security.

Family Violence Services

We provide specialist family violence services to women and children across the Bayside Peninsula and Brimbank-Melton regions including:

- Intake and assessment
- Case management
- Refuge and accommodation services
- Psycho-education programs
- Healing and recovery programs.

Family Violence Core and Cluster Refuge

At the Core and Cluster Refuge, we provide safe housing for up to six to eight weeks for women and children escaping family violence.

Providing a trauma-informed service with dignity

We know that leaving a family violence relationship requires immense resilience, so we work hard to build rapport and trust with our clients.

“The women we walk alongside in refuge are there out of pure safety reasons,” said Family Violence Services Program Manager, Erin Price.

“So, we look at their experience of family violence and their immediate safety needs, but also what impact violence has had on other life domains such as housing, education and training, employment, economic status and health and wellbeing.”

“We look at someone’s individual experience and provide a dignified service accordingly.

We support people to bring pets into refuge, because we know that they’re family members and can be a determining factor for someone leaving a family violence relationship. “

“We also don’t have any curfews because these women have experienced such control in family violence relationships, so we lead in a way that is strengths-based and empowering.”

2 Coalitions for impact

We work collaboratively with our clients and enlist support from other Good Shepherd programs and external agencies where appropriate. We take a ‘no wrong door approach’, which means we take referrals from women who self present and other professional agencies such as Safe Steps.

We work with Victoria Police, Corrections Victoria, Specialist Family Violence Courts and Child Protection to ensure perpetrators of violence are held accountable for their actions. We also use the Family Violence Information Sharing Scheme (FVISS) and Child Information Sharing Scheme (CISS) to ensure that perpetrators are held accountable and women and children don’t need to retell their stories.

The history of our refuge

1978 Peninsula Family Violence Program begins as a refuge.

1987 The refuge changes its name to Valerie House Wimmin’s Collective Inc. (VHWC.) named after a prominent US feminist.

“I feel so supported by Good Shepherd”

Family violence victim-survivor, Leah* is currently staying at the Core and Cluster Refuge after years of being controlled and abused by her ex-partner.

Leah took the brave step to leave her relationship, after she sustained a brutal beating which left her with a broken nose. Her partner’s mother witnessed the incident, called the police and insisted she seek safety.

After coming through Safe Steps Family Violence Response Centre, she came to Good Shepherd’s Refuge and has been amazed at her own transformation.

“I am a completely different person to what I was in week one and week two,” Leah said.

“I am stable for the first time in 28 years. I am feeling good about myself, and I have my confidence back – I am feeling awesome!”

Leah, a Taungurung woman from the Kulin nation, said Good Shepherd has connected her with several different services, including Indigenous-led organisations.

“I have been connected to First Nations organisations and with a Financial Advisor. Because every partner I’ve ever had controlled my money, I am learning how to control money and pay off my debts. I even have ‘me money’ to buy a candle or hair dye if I want it.”

“I am really grateful for everything Good Shepherd has done for me”

When asked what the future looks like now, she replied confidently.

“I am hoping to do more education and get my community service certificate. I have already been offered a job as a Social Worker, so I am thinking that will be my next step, as soon as I get stable housing. My goal is to help other women to do what the Good Shepherd people have helped me do.”

3. HOUSING OPTIONS

Women have safe and secure housing in supported communities.

AFFORDABLE HOUSING PROJECT, NSW

Having a place to call home is a fundamental human right.

There is currently a significant shortage of safe and affordable housing options in Australia and sadly, it is often a barrier to women and children escaping family violence.

Due to an ageing population, housing policies and a significant gap in financial security between men and women across their lifetimes, older women – aged 55 and over – are the fastest growing cohort of people experiencing homelessness in Australia (ABS, 2016 Census).

1 Service excellence

Rethinking affordable housing

Affordable housing is at a crisis point in Australia and while there are many efforts to address the challenge, they largely rely on traditional models and approaches. We need transformative thinking and models to provide a solution at scale.

Older women are the fastest growing group experiencing homelessness in Australia, and in coming years (especially following COVID-19), it is anticipated that a significant proportion of older women will be at risk of homelessness. Failing to respond would decrease a woman's ability to live to their potential and has significant social and economic costs.

Good Shepherd is undertaking a multimillion-dollar affordable housing project to provide approximately 45 dwellings for senior women in Marrickville. We are co-creating with experts and women with lived experience. The model and learnings will be leveraged and shared to scale the impact.

RMIT University has been commissioned to research the affordable, long-term, and sustainable housing options available.

RMIT University's findings:

Alone and together

Designing affordable, long term and sustainable housing options for women over the age of 55 requires physical spaces which allow for the balance between privacy and access to a broader community. This is a central aspect of good practice.

Partnership and collaboration

Housing service delivery must be driven by partnership and collaboration at all levels. That is, different services must work with each other but, most importantly, they should be designed, provided and evaluated in collaboration with residents.

Agency, stability and security

Intersecting with housing construction and services design, women's agency is central and involves having a choice in the type of housing, autonomy at home, and opportunities for social interaction at home, in the community and neighbourhood. Stability and security are core to belonging and wellbeing. This includes living in a physically safe environment as well as security of tenure.

2 Coalitions for impact

The power of co-design

On behalf of Good Shepherd, RMIT University has commenced co-design workshops with women with lived experience in this age cohort and with a group of sector stakeholders. The workshops are exploring the barriers and solutions to housing insecurity.

Consultation with a diverse range of stakeholders has taken place to ensure we are leveraging knowledge and assets to explore new models of affordable and sustainable housing.

Big changes to housing policy requires collective advocacy

We joined the Australian Council of Social Service (ACOSS) in advocating to the Federal Government for better quality housing that reduces energy bills and carbon emissions.

We are also joining SACOSS and housing advocates in the push for major rental reforms in South Australia. This is needed to limit excessive price hikes, end no-cause evictions, and create enforceable energy efficiency standards for lower bills and improved health outcomes.

3 Whole system thinking and action

Advocating for a significant increase in affordable and sustainable housing for women and children remains a priority for the organisation.

According to our client insights, in addition to homelessness, a lack of long-term, secure housing is one of the biggest barriers for women escaping and recovering from family violence. This difficulty is compounded for women whose visa or right-to-work status creates financial insecurity.

In March 2023, we provided feedback to the Safe Places Emergency Accommodation Program Inclusion Round, an initiative under the Australian Federal Government's National Plan to End Violence against Women and Children 2022-2032.

As a leading housing and frontline family violence organisation, we recommended the government ensure that women from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds are:

- Provided with safe and accessible emergency accommodation
- Not restricted from accessing longer term accommodation due to their Visa status, and
- Supported with specialist services that understand their specific experience of family violence and abuse.

In June 2023, our CEO, Stella Avramopoulos participated in the Federal Government's Safe Places Emergency Accommodation Program roundtable discussion, alongside other specialist housing and family violence service providers.

YOUTH HOMELESSNESS SERVICE, VICTORIA

Over 22,000 Victorians are sleeping rough, of which 6000 are under 25 years of age¹.

1. Regional Local Government Charter Homelessness and Social Housing Group, Inquiry into homelessness in Australia, 2019.

There is a severe shortage of age-appropriate housing for young people who are often made homeless by rising rental costs and family violence.

Housing insecurity and homelessness make it difficult for young people to stay engaged in education and training, or access health services.

Contributing Factors to Homelessness

While these contributing factors can have long-term ramifications, we are working hard to help change that.

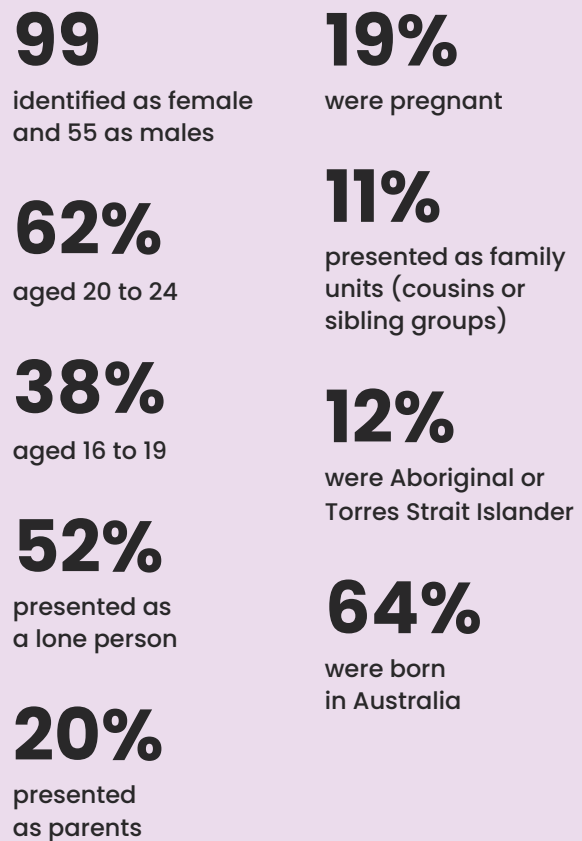

1 Service excellence

We support young people to create a brighter future

We provide support and case management to young people aged 16-24 years old, who are experiencing – or are at risk of – homelessness.

Working in the west, north and inner-city suburbs of Melbourne, we tailor our offering to enable greater independence and housing stability for young people.

This FY2022-23, we supported 154 clients

2 Coalitions for impact

Working together to keep young people safe and resilient

To ensure young people have the support they need to rebuild their lives, we collaborate with three organisations across Melbourne including the Salvation Army in Sunshine, Unison Housing in Seddon and Launch Housing in Collingwood.

Partnering with other leading homelessness services enables us to walk alongside young people and help them reach their full potential.

Walking alongside our clients – stories of resilience

20-year-old, Melanie*, was first referred to Good Shepherd when she was four weeks pregnant and at risk of being evicted due to rental arrears. The owner of the property was taking Melanie to VCAT, and she was facing serious charges for another matter for which her ex-partner was incarcerated. Although she had been previously employed, because she was struggling with her mental health, she was unable to work.

Building trust

Understandably, Melanie found it hard to trust people and it took a couple of months for her case manager to build rapport with her.

She eventually revealed that her ex-partner had been violent, was involved in a gang and that she feared for her life. In addition, her property had been broken into multiple times and one of her animals was killed. It became apparent that she may have been coerced into participating in criminal activity.

We worked with Melanie to create a safety plan and advocated for her rental arrears to be waived. The VCAT case was dropped which meant she was able to stay in her apartment without any damage to her rental history.

Sadly, her apartment was broken into again and she had to flee to emergency accommodation. Good Shepherd provided material aid and support during her stay; however, we were unable to find her dog friendly accommodation. We worked closely with Melanie to identify how we could keep her safe at her apartment.

We applied for family violence funding and advocated for security cameras to be set up, for the locks to be changed, and for barriers to be installed on her balcony.

With a strong support network, a safety plan, and safety devices installed at her property, Melanie expressed that she felt safer, and she was able to stay in her rental property.

The Case Workers provided support letters for Melanie around her legal matters and encouraged her to speak about the violence she had experienced. In a collaborative effort with her legal team, Melanie was granted a diversion from the magistrate and does not have a criminal record provided she follows conditions of diversion.

She is also alleviated from debt after being provided with support letters for fines incurred during the time she was experiencing intimate partner violence.

Melanie was supported to access the Escaping Violence Payment to pay for rent in advance, as well as free dental care and baby supplies to help her prepare for the arrival of her baby.

On the path to recovery

Excitingly, Melanie gave birth to a healthy baby in early May and is connected to Caroline Chisholm for a range of parenting supports.

Melanie is now thriving with:

- A stable place to live
- A positive rental history
- No criminal record
- No contact with her abusive ex-partner
- Regained trust in people
- A contact for support
- Casual employment as a Support Worker.

The future looks a lot brighter for Melanie than when we first met her. She is now an aspiring Social Worker and we couldn't be prouder of her progress.

ST CLARE'S SCHOOL, PERTH

St Clare's School is a gift to the Perth region from the Good Shepherd Sisters, whose zeal and audacity made this work possible.

St Clare's provides a safe and individualised learning environment to support girls unable to engage in mainstream schooling.

The school removes obstacles to learning and assists students to re-engage in education while providing relevant therapeutic assistance.

A combination of trauma-informed care and positive education theory ensures all students flourish and grow throughout their schooling and beyond.

Class of 2022: A story of resilience

After a prolonged hiatus from secondary school, *Cara, came to St Clare's in 2021.

Due to the extended absence, it was challenging for her to catch up on missed academic tasks and requirements.

However, with the help of individual academic and therapeutic supports, Cara was able to reconnect with her studies. She also gained the confidence to seek part-time employment, obtain her driver's licence and apply for a university bridging course after completing Year 12.

Just eight months after finishing her secondary school studies, Cara enrolled in a bachelor's degree at a local university. Cara acknowledges that none of this would have been possible without the individualised care and practical support she received at St Clare's School.

SCHOOL FOCUSED YOUTH SERVICE, BRIMBANK, VICTORIA

Enhancing student engagement and wellbeing

We support primary and secondary students at risk of disengaging from school through early identification and targeted intervention.

Students are provided with fully funded facilitators to deliver 8–10 week programs in activities such as art therapy, martial arts, cultural diversity and Stride Peer Mediation.

We also provide training for staff to support students through youth mental health first aid, wellness in the classroom and how to create LGBTQIA+ inclusive classrooms.

Supports provided to school staff, families and carers are tailored, evidence-based, developmentally appropriate, and trauma-informed.

The students we support may be experiencing the following barriers to school engagement including:

- Behavioural or mental health concerns
- Homelessness
- Bullying
- Family breakdown or violence
- Low or inconsistent attendance
- Low educational/academic achievement
- Part of a cohort experiencing vulnerability such as young carers, students in out-of-home care, refugees, people with disability or Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders.

Supporting children and young people to thrive: stories of resilience

From a young age, Tom* lacked a stable figure in his life and suffered developmental trauma and physical and emotional neglect. He was often exposed to his biological mother's drug and alcohol abuse, and to her periodic incarcerations. He also suffered intense grief from being separated from his younger half sibling, who was placed into foster care.

While he was eventually reunited with his father a few years into primary school, he then dealt with the trauma of his father's cancer diagnosis (now in remission) and losing a very close family member.

Despite the challenges, Tom engaged well at primary school and was well-liked by his peers and teachers. However, when Tom approached Grade 4, concerning signs started to emerge whereby he would become extremely angry and upset when triggered, particularly in the yard. This continued to flow into Grade 5, where his outbursts became more frequent and intense.

Tom's developmental trauma means that he has trouble regulating his emotions, has low self-esteem and often experiences anxiety about his father's health and the separation from his half-sibling. He also finds it difficult to navigate friendships and reflect on how his actions and words impact his peers.

The power of early identification and targeted intervention

Tom was eager to participate in the School Focused Youth Service program. He enjoyed the therapeutic space, being creative and sharing. Tom engaged well with the facilitator and enjoyed the journaling activities and weekly discussions at the start of each session. Tom said that he found the art therapy beneficial and wished it to continue.

While Tom's challenges require ongoing support, his teacher is using the journaling pack to help him when he's triggered. He also likes using his journal and art pack to help him when he's heightened or needs some alone time.

“I have had the absolute privilege in collaborating with Good Shepherd over the past few years to deliver wellbeing programs to our deserving students with a range of complex issues. The programs have been extremely successful for our students and our school. I can say without a doubt that when these programs were offered, the students were totally engaged and, for some, their school attendance rates improved as the program provided that extra motivation to attend school. Now you can’t put a price on this level of success!”

The Chalk Board was a project completed by students from Western Port Secondary College. The picture shows the chalk drawing by one of the students who coloured in one of the faces reflecting the young person's cultural identity and inclusivity within the community.

Early years strategy for children in Australia

On 4 February 2023, the Department of Social Services opened consultation on its Early Years Strategy.

The Strategy is intended to help the Government to create a more integrated, holistic approach to the early years and better support the wellbeing of children aged 0 to 5 years.

Recognising how critical the early years are for children's development, the Strategy will be a roadmap for national programs, funding and frameworks impacting the country's youngest children and their families.

Our response sets out what the Government can do to improve outcomes for children who are born and raised in more vulnerable and disadvantaged circumstances. It is based on consultations with practitioners, and analysis of client data.

Our submission advocates for the need for Government to integrate the portfolios and policies that intersect with the wellbeing of children through the Early Years Strategy by:

- Addressing the contexts, prevalence, and potentially lifelong impacts of different early childhood traumas
- Investing in training existing family violence practitioners, and resourcing more practitioners, to recognise children as victim-survivors in their own right
- Prioritising prevention by targeting maternal safety, financial wellbeing, and programs that nurture secure attachment between vulnerable parents and their children, and support caregivers to provide for their children's material and emotional needs
- Focusing on the historical and longstanding oppression of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Australians and their children that continues to 'leave them behind' non-Indigenous children.

HERITAGE PROGRAMS

Our Heritage Programs incorporate Archives and Records Management, The Chapel and History Centre, along with Records Access and Information for Former Good Shepherd Residents.

Our work supports Good Shepherd by ensuring that our institutional history is acknowledged, and through our work we continue to honour and support all who resided at a past Good Shepherd institution.

The Good Shepherd Archives

The Archives and Records Team safeguards all Good Shepherd's records, dating from 1863 up until today. The team is pivotal to ensuring that all records are protected and that GSA NZ is aligned with current records standards and best practice.

The Good Shepherd Chapel

Our Chapel has transformed over time to become a cherished community venue where people can gather, share, learn, enjoy and reflect. It is a vibrant space, well known for its historical significance and as a wonderful backdrop for special events, rich with character and ambience. Situated within the historical and heritage listed buildings of the Abbotsford Convent precinct, the Chapel is surrounded by landscaped gardens and views of the Yarra River.

The Chapel is available to celebrate weddings, baptisms, and funerals. The Chapel, Mezzanine and Gallery spaces can also host music performances, spoken word, art or cultural events that are aligned with the Good Shepherd values.

Mass is celebrated at the Chapel on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Sunday from 9:30-10am. Everyone welcome.

History Centre

The History Centre provides a dynamic view of the Good Shepherd Sisters' story, shares the diverse experiences of Former Residents and provides an overview of the nine institutional sites across Australia and New Zealand. The National Memorial to Former Residents is in the Chapel Garden.

Former Resident Support – Acknowledge, Honour and Remember

From 1863 to the 1980s, Good Shepherd institutions in Australia and New Zealand housed girls and young women at risk due to poverty, homelessness or family crisis.

The Former Resident Information and Records Service (FRIRS) provides a free and confidential support to former residents or their family members to receive copies of their personal records and historical information of their time in Good Shepherd institutions. Contemporary support includes assistance through referral to information and services relevant to former residents.

We remember, acknowledge and honour all the women and children who spent time in Good Shepherd institutions.

"...thank you for the prompt, trauma-informed and well-presented approach that your team takes in supporting my clients in receiving records."

OUR DONORS

THANK YOU FOR YOUR SUPPORT

We are grateful to everyone who supports Good Shepherd. Donations help us sustain our vital work to advocate for positive social change and to help women, girls and their families access the support they need.

Why I give to Good Shepherd Jill Fisher

How long have you been giving to Good Shepherd?

I have been giving regularly to Good Shepherd since 2017 when I held an all-girls dance party fundraiser for our local Good Shepherd team as my 60th birthday celebration.

We raised over $3,000 to support the holiday program and young mothers/babies support programs on the Mornington Peninsula. These programs were identified as a funding priority by the local team. We invited someone from Good Shepherd to talk to our group about their work supporting women, girls and children on the peninsula.

We also had a fabulous night of laughter, companionship, fun and lots of dancing!

Why do you give to Good Shepherd?

I choose to give in honour of my great, great aunt Mother Peter Claver/Elizabeth Golding who was a dedicated and highly respected member of the Good Shepherd Order in Victoria in the early 1900s.

Originally from Galway, Ireland, Elizabeth arrived in Queensland with her sisters in 1886, before entering the order at Abbotsford in 1901. She was Prioress of St Aidan's Orphanage, Bendigo in 1920 and, later, Mother Superior of Oakleigh Convent in 1929. She died in 1933 and is remembered as a woman of leadership and kindness who 'shed' cheerfulness and peace.

I also choose to give to Good Shepherd because I know what a difference their programs make in the lives of women of all ages and their children in my local community – and beyond. I've had very dear friends who've found themselves in difficult circumstances beyond their control who have found support from Good Shepherd and similar agencies absolutely lifesaving to help them through their darkest times.

What would you say to others thinking of giving to Good Shepherd?

Your support has a direct and positive impact on the health, safety and wellbeing of women and children experiencing vulnerability in the community.

Good Shepherd's programs focus on building capability and strong, safe futures for women and children through practical and compassionate strategies. Even a little can go a long way, so please consider giving whatever you can.

What is your hope for the future for women, girls and families?

That's a big question. I am really saddened to hear regular reports of tragic circumstances for many women, girls and children in our community – be this from lack of secure employment, housing, family/relationships or health.

However, it's also fabulous to see women being more recognised and celebrated for their immense capability and contributions. So, my hope is that, together, we continue to strengthen and value both the roles and capacity of women in our society and the range of support available to them to establish and maintain their own safe and rewarding futures.

Why I give to Good Shepherd

"On my trips to Hastings it's clear Good Shepherd is doing good work. As well, our family had great guidance over credit card debt for an elderly family member some years ago. I once had a client too who worked for Good Shepherd for a while who was very positive."

"Cost of living is impacting the homeless, people are struggling in daily life."

"I am a survivor of domestic violence myself with four kids, had little to no help, paying it forward is important to me."

"I wish to support financial literacy and independence for vulnerable families."

"Great causes need support always!"

"Your catch phrase, 'she's saving to escape domestic violence.' That was me six years ago and it was impossible to achieve."

"I am fortunate to live with a wonderful partner and it saddens me to know so many do not have this partnership, love or security in their lives."

"I would like to support the safe relocation of women, girls and their families experiencing family violence."

"Saw article in The Guardian and thought 'what a good idea' (about Good Shepherd's No Interest Loans program)."

"I saw the article in The Guardian about women benefiting from your No Interest Loans program."

"The need of so many women in our city today."

OUR PEOPLE

Our team is comprised of more than 500 talented, kind, hard-working people whose personal and professional values reflect our Vision for all women, girls, and families to be safe, well, strong and connected.

People highlights

Good Shepherd Day

To mark the anniversary of Sister Mary Euphrasia carrying forward the Good Shepherd mission to Australia, every year staff come together to celebrate Good Shepherd Day. The internal event is a time for the team to reinvigorate their connection to our mission and values, and to celebrate our achievements.

This year, the team reflected on 160 years of Good Shepherd in Australia and how we have responded throughout the decades to best serve the needs of women, girls and families.

The Green Door activity

Before embarking on the long and arduous journey to Australia to carry forward the Good Shepherd Mission, the Sisters walked through the Green Door in Anger, France.

The 'Green Door' has become symbolic of the courage and commitment of the Sisters and staff to open new doors for the Mission. That commitment continues to this day.

On Good Shepherd Day, staff were encouraged to create their own Green Doors to display at their work site as a physical reminder of the story.

Staff embraced their creativity with various interpretations of the brief, including a collage of the Green Door, creating individual Green Doors with the Good Shepherd Values and even painting a door in the office green.

Good Shepherd backs First Nations Voice to Parliament

The Uluru Statement from the Heart calls on all of us to build a better future by establishing a First Nations Voice to Parliament enshrined in the Constitution.

As Australia's oldest charity supporting women, girls and families, Good Shepherd wholeheartedly supports the Voice to Parliament and the full implementation of the Uluru Statement from the Heart.

A Voice to Parliament is a historic step forward. It enshrines an Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Voice in the Australian Constitution and creates a mechanism for their participation in the decisions, laws and policies that affect their communities.

It is also an opportunity to formally acknowledge and pay our respects to the world's oldest, continuous culture, and their connection to their lands and waterways.

The Voice to Parliament is an important step in implementing the Uluru Statement from the Heart in full. Voice, Treaty and Truth are fundamental elements if we are to right the wrongs of the past, turn good intentions into action, and build fair and truthful relationships with First Nations peoples.

The Uluru Statement from the Heart aligns with our Values of justice and reconciliation, and our commitment to work towards these with audacity and zeal. Now that the proposed wording for constitutional change has been put to Parliament for debate, we look forward to working with other service organisations and within our communities to share information, build understanding and achieve this milestone together.

We have been invited to walk alongside First Nations peoples, and we humbly accept this invitation to contribute to collective efforts, to deliver a future that is hopeful, fair and just.

Employee wellbeing

Employee Assistance Program

All Good Shepherd employees have access to our Employee Assistance Program (EAP) delivered by Converge International.

The EAP is a voluntary and confidential service, providing a range of supports to our people from Employee Assist, Manager Assist, Career Assist, Conflict Assist, Nutrition and Lifestyle Assist, Money Assist and Family Assist. EAP offers our workforce and their immediate family members access to specialist helplines including a First Nations Helpline, LGBTQIA+ helpline, Domestic and Family Violence Helpline, Aged Care helpline, Disability and Carers helpline, a Spiritual and Pastoral Care helpline and a Youth and Student Helpline.

We are proud of our partnership with Converge International and the support we can provide our people with their health and wellbeing.

Rainbow Tick

The Rainbow Tick is a quality framework that helps organisations show that they are safe, inclusive, and affirming services and employers for the LGBTIQ+ community.

In 2020–21, we were awarded Rainbow Tick accreditation for our specialist Family Violence program. This demonstrates that our program provides a safe and welcoming place for LGBTIQ+ identifying clients and service participants.

We continue to meet the ongoing assessment and quality improvement requirements to remain Rainbow Tick accredited.

IDAHOBIT Day

To show our support for LGBTIQ+ people, we celebrated IDAHOBIT Day (International Day Against Homophobia, Biphobia, Intersex Discrimination and Transphobia) on May 17th.

CEO of Joy Media, Ange Barry, was invited to speak to staff about the history of IDAHOBIT Day and to discuss issues of equality and acceptance for people from the Rainbow Community.

THE GREEN DOOR STORY

In the mid-1800s, Saint Mary Euphrasia Pelletier established a Good Shepherd Refuge in Angers, France.

It was from Angers that Good Shepherd Sisters were sent out to establish new Mission projects around the world. They were farewelled to their new destinations by all the Sisters in the community as they left the Convent, via the main entrance, which was a large wooden green door. This is the door that the four Sisters who established Good Shepherd in Australia walked through in 1863.

The 'Green Door' has become a symbol in Good Shepherd, representing the commitment of Sisters and staff to expand and open new doors for the Mission.

LOOKING FORWARD

2023-2027 STRATEGIC PLAN

Our audacious new strategy will better serve women, girls, families and communities, as we collaborate globally and deliver locally.

During the reporting period, we brought to a close our 2019-2022 Strategic Plan that brought about significant transformation and impact across our Australian operations. It steered us through the turbulence of COVID-19, climate disasters and the emergence of new vulnerable cohorts.

The journey followed a top-down, bottom-up, inside-out and outside-in approach, ensuring a holistic and well-rounded perspective in shaping our new strategy.

2023-2027 STRATEGIC PLAN

Pictured: The consultation process on the Strategic Plan.

In August 2022, we embarked on a bold and transformative 10-month journey, drawing insights from our colleagues in New Zealand and across our ecosystem.

We conducted a comprehensive series of discussions, workshops, consultations, and research endeavours, spanning local, national, and global landscapes.

Our consultative process included strategic consultations and workshops with more than 200 staff and leaders across Australia and New Zealand.

We also consulted with our Boards, the Provincial Leadership Team, the Stewardship Council, and over 60 cross-sector stakeholders across government, community, philanthropy and the corporate sector. These insights, recommendations and ideas collectively informed the new strategy.

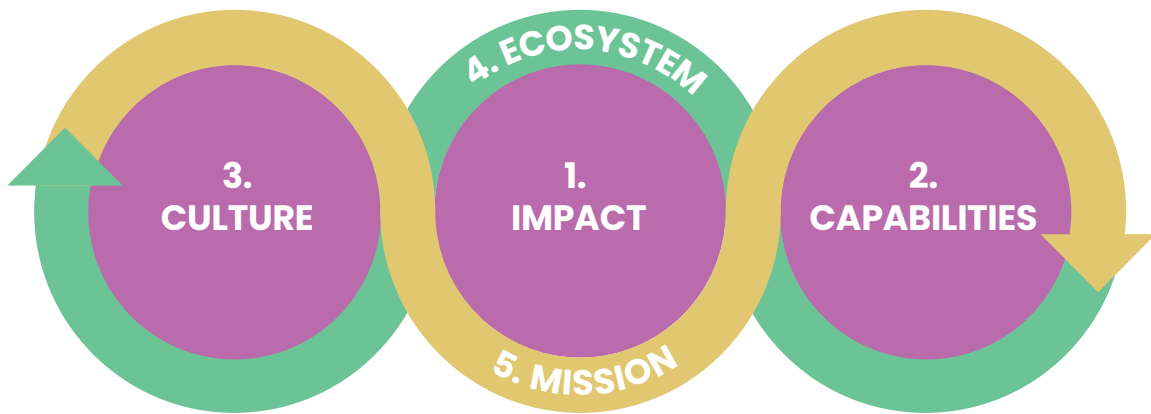

Pictured: The consultation process on the Strategic Plan.

It focuses on five key areas of strategic endeavour that will weave together through integral and dynamic relationships to deliver on our Mission.

It is a directional strategy that will build on the interdependencies between Australia and New Zealand, within the broader Asia-Pacific regional context of the global Good Shepherd network.

Our new strategy has five strategic areas of endeavour

We aspire for women, girls and families to be safe, strong, well and connected.

1. THE IMPACT WE SEEK

Shaping our service delivery approaches across the prevention to recovery service continuum across five impact areas.

2. CAPABILITIES WE NEED

A dynamic, relationally adept and resilient organisation, uncompromising in its delivery of Mission.

3. CULTURE WE WILL BUILD

Foster mindset, underpin operating models and embed behaviours that drive the impact we seek and embody interculturality.

4. & 5. ECOSYSTEM & MISSION THREADS

The philosophy of change to shape the heart and mindset of what we do and why we do it.

Our new Green Door of opportunity

In June 2023, the Board approved the GSA NZ 2023–2027 Strategic Plan, opening a new Green Door for Australia and New Zealand. The Plan embraces innovation and will roll out a cutting-edge social services strategy, to better serve women, girls, and families.

2023–2027 STRATEGIC PLAN

It adopts an ecosystem approach that creates, activates and amplifies multi-sector partnerships, assets and thought leadership, to develop and deliver place-based, integrated, streamlined, tailored and rights-based social services.

THE IMPACT WE SEEK

We will shape our service delivery approaches across the prevention to recovery service continuum, focusing on FIVE IMPACT AREAS.

People-centred holistic services

Audacious reform and bold
system change

Activating and enabling ecosystems and a broader ecology of support

Women, girls and families live full and dignified lives

Dignified income and
wellbeing

Our strategy repositions the organisation as an influential ecosystem enabler that, true to the Good Shepherd tradition, works with and through others. The Strategic Plan centres the women, girls and families we serve. It also draws from our history to do justice to our Mission and ensure the viability of Good Shepherd Australian New Zealand for generations to come.

Basis of preparation

These summary financial statements have been prepared as special purpose financial statements as, in the opinion of the Directors, it is unlikely there are users of these financial statements who are not in a position to require the preparation of reports tailored to their information needs. These financial statements have been prepared in order to meet the requirements of the Australian Charities and Not-for-profits Commission Act 2012. These financial statements do not consolidate the Good Shepherd Services entity (ACN: 132 221 820) despite the Directors being the same individuals as Good Shepherd Australia New Zealand. Good Shepherd Services has prepared a separate set of financial statements which is considered to represent more faithfully the governance approach applied. Good Shepherd Australia and New Zealand's partially consolidated special purpose financial statements comply with the recognition and measurement requirements in Australian Accounting Standards except for the requirements set out in AASB 10 Consolidated Financial Statements. The financial statements, except for the cash flow information, have been prepared on an accruals basis and are based on historical costs unless otherwise stated in the notes.
